ALLEGED EFFORT AT CURTAILMENT RUNS INTO SNAG

Attempt To Consolidate The County Departments Meets With Sanguous Opposition—Court Threat Made

At the meeting of the County Board of Supervisors, Wednesday of this week, an ordinance was presented by County Manager E. A. Rolison calling for the consolidation of Purchasing Agent Stanley Kelly's office with that of Rolison was adopted by the board.

In effect, adoption of the ordinance means that Kelly, a $35,500 a year official, will be ousted within 30 days and his duties taken over by Rolison.

Rolison stated to the supervisors he had come to the conclusion such a move was in the "interest of the public and would effect economies." The alleged effort at curtailment and economy met with a sour note from the official sought to be eliminated by the action of the county executive and Board of Supervisors.

Joseph J. Bullock, representing Kelly before the supervisors, unsuccessfully attempted to delay passage of the ordinance. After adoption of the ordinance the attorney sounded this ominous warning to the board: "Now you are going to have a lawsuit on your hands."

Kelly's appointment as purchasing agent was to have expired in 1939. Kelly, in his review of the case, branded the move as "purely politics."

SEABISCUIT NOW QUARTERED AT HOME COURSE

Big Query Seems To Be Just How Good Is Thoroughbred Compared To Others

Seabiscuit, America's leading money-winner of 1937, today is safely stabled at Tanforan. He headed the 19-horse cavalcade of Charles S. Howard, San Francisco sportsman, which arrived in two divisions. The main string shipped from Maryland, while six new Argentine horses, three of them owned jointly by Bing Crosby and Lin Howard, came from New York, joining the first division at Chicago.

Highlights of the arrival were: Seabiscuit was pawing in his stall, fresh and anxious to get unloaded. He stood the long ship perfectly and looked fit enough to set a track record today.

"We had a fine trip," Trainer Tom Smith said. "The horses shipped well and Seabiscuit is in great shape. He thrives on racing and we intend to run him at Tanforan in the San Francisco Handicap, December 18th."

Owner Howard hovered about Seabiscuit's stall (the Biscuit had one end of a car to himself) and petted the star which cost $8,000 and to date has earned $210,085—$168,642 of that amount this year.

"Do you think Seabiscuit could

Destroyer Launched At San Francisco

With a bottle of champagne smashed over her bow, the United States Navy destroyer, the U. S. S. McCall, was recently christened at San Francisco by Miss Eleanor Kempff. The destroyer was privately built for the U. S. Navy and will carry 5-inch and 38-caliber guns. She measures 334 feet on the water line and was named after Lieutenant Edward Rutledge McCall, hero of the Boxer-Enterprise sea battle in the war of 1812. Miss Kempff is the daughter of Rear Admiral Clarence S. Kempff, commandant of the Twelfth Naval District.

ACTION OF PLAY POLICE WILL STEP PROVES CRIME OUT AND DANCE WILL NEVER PAY

Ordeals Suffered By Law Office Clerk Who Waged Astray Demonstrates This Axiom

Justice punishes weakness, does not cure vice. This, in effect, is the message that John Galsworthy's stark drama, "Justice," delivered Wednesday night when the San Francisco Federal Theater Project presented its first Galsworthy play before one of the largest audiences ever gathered in the Alcazar Theater.

The play is about a clerk in a law office who turned forger and the devious route of his destiny up to the last minute of his life. The horrifying ordeal of apprehension, trial, prison, release on parole, reinstatement in society, operation of stern English justice, complete frustration and death are presented as starkly as only a Galsworthy does those things. It is a play, curiously fair and impartial, yet eloquent enough in the plea for those who have ears to hear and full of the poignant emotional appeal.

It is splendidly acted by the entire cast, a cast by the way that calls for all men actors with one exception, Leon Forbes, as Falder the default.

Auto Victim To Be Put In 'Iron Lung'

Dr. W. E. Fehlman of Santa Cruz, critically injured in an automobile accident in eastern Oregon last week, will be placed in an iron lung, his physician at Portland, Ore., stated, Monday of this week.

BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTOMOBILE FIRE

A 14 year old negro boy, Curtis King, was burned to death, Monday of this week, when he was trapped in his automobile after it collided with an oil truck, near Madera, and caught fire.

The annual fall of the Peninsula Police Officers Association will be held at the Municipal Auditorium in San Jose, February 12, 1938, for the benefit of the Widows and Orphans Fund of the organization.

A. Terragno, of the South San Francisco Police Department, is president of the association, and Officer Leroy Hubbard of the Atherton Police Department is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dance.

The ticket sale for the event, this year, will be handled by Tom Kane, of Redwood City, former manager of the Sequoia Theater.

Declares War On Berry Pickers

Anticipating the holiday season, Fire Warden Bert Werder, Monday of this week, declared war on commercial pickers who yearly denude San Mateo County of Yon berries, holly, and tender branches of young redwood trees for Christmas wreaths and streamers.

"There is a tremendous market for these things, and commercial interest are willing to take great risks to get their material," he said.

"We are on the lookout, and we have the cooperation of the highway patrol. As soon as we spot any truckloads of greens leaving the county, we will take immediate action."

According to Werder, commercial groups are the worst offenders, trespassing without regard of the owners of the property or for the law.

San Mateo Jaycee Entertain Speakers

Sheriff James McGrath, C. L. Corson, construction superintendent of the San Francisco Union Paving Company, and Frank Griffin, Sequoia High School instructor, were recent speakers at the San Mateo Junior College.

The sheriff talked of the work of his office before the Pre-Legal Club, Corson spoke on the advantages of asphalt paving to the College Engineering Club, and Griffin told of his visit to Devil's Island, the French penal station, in a talk to the entire student body.

Almond Exchange Cuts Pumpkin For Thanksgiving Day

Repeating last year's performance, the California Almond Growers Exchange will disburse to its members during the coming week payments aggregating $300,000, this amount representing an additional 20 per cent advance on the 1937 almond crop, together with refunding of growers past contributions to Series 4 of Exchange reserves.

In announcing the distribution of these funds, Manager Bailey stated that checks will reach growers in ample time to meet payment of fall taxes.

He also stated that while the 1937 crop of almonds was the largest ever produced in California, it is expected that it will move into consumption well in advance of next harvest season.

ROLL CALL HAS ACCOMPLISHED BIG INCREASE

As the American Red Cross Roll Call was brought to a close yesterday, November 25, the Red Cross manager in the Pacific Area said early returns indicated an enrollment approximating a half-million members in the Pacific states toward the national objective of five million members.

Voicing a note of Thanksgiving to the public for its increased support of Red Cross activities, Mr. Schafer emphasized the urgent need today for more help in the campaign to save lives by reducing the number of accidents on highways and in homes.

At the time he called upon every Red Cross unit, every Red Cross supporter, to concentrate their efforts during the next two months on the establishment of more Highway Emergency First Aid stations. He stated:

"National statistics show a 9 per cent increase in automobile fatalities during the first nine months of the year; 28,140 against 25,710 a year ago. Prevention of this tremendous loss calls for a greater effort on the part of every individual who can lend assistance."

"The Red Cross has established 338 fixed stations and 113 mobile units in the Pacific Area, all operated by volunteers. Nationally there are 1990 fixed stations and 1175 mobile units. Some of these volunteer first aiders have saved lives of auto

Are Held Exempt From Sales Tax

California clubmen, including members of the various fraternal orders, hereafter may eat meals at their clubs without digging up the odd pennies to pay sales tax assessed against their food.

Superior Judge Jeter J. Shields, in Sacramento, this week, in an opinion sought by the Union League Club of San Francisco, held meals served by private clubs are exempt from the three per cent levy.

The club sued State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson to recover taxes paid under protest.

SAFE DRIVING BEST IN END

Congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist.—The efforts made by the various organizations and individuals to help the driving public keep the number of traffic accidents at a minimum during the last week-end were eminently successful, and demonstrated that when people are actually safety-conscious when driving their automobiles, the number of accidents can be greatly reduced.

The calendar issued by the National Safety Council for the ensuing year shows, for the month of November, a puritan family offering thanks at the feast. We submit as a thought for this Thanksgiving week, the caption appearing with the picture: "And we thank Thee for Thy Guiding Spirit which has kept us safe and sound."—San Mateo Traffic Safety Commission.

SAN BRUNO IS TO HAVE NAVAL RESERVE UNIT

Young Men Of Northern End Of County May Be Instructed In Radio Technique

Many advantages are to be gained by local young men of this community, who enroll in the U. S. Naval Communication Reserve Unit now being formed in the northern half of San Mateo County, with headquarters located in San Bruno. Radio courses sponsored by the Navy Department equip him with a knowledge sufficient to take his place as a radio operator in the U. S. Fleet, for a two cruise, during his vacation, with full pay and privileges of a regular Navy operator. These courses are comparable to those given in leading radio schools and colleges.

A complete uniform outfit is issued to members without cost and arms and ammunition are provided by the Navy to permit the radio men to become proficient in their use, as well as in the operation of radio

Fall Tree With Mountain Lion
Greenville.—Tree fallers working near here felled a tree with a large mountain lion sitting in its branches. The men worked for forty minutes without knowing that the lion was perched above them. David Jenkins, a limber, saw the big cat jump from the tree just before it hit the ground. The animal escaped unharmed into the woods.

Shasta Dredge Uncovers 1845 Coin
Redding.—John Sandburg, a local dredge operator, is displaying a $5 gold piece bearing the date 1845 and the mint letter C, which the Sandburg & Carlson field boat on Indian Creek dug up. In 1848 Cincinnati and Washington had the only United States mints and it is believed the coin was minted in Cincinnati.

First Suicide on Alcatraz
San Francisco.—Alcatraz Island's first suicide occurred when Edward Wutke, 36, serving 27 years for murder on the high seas, slashed his jugular veins and bled to death in his cell. Wutke fashioned the death weapon from a pencil sharpener blade and the handle of a safety razor. He was convicted of slaying a seaman aboard the old coastwise steamer Yale while the vessel was between San Pedro and San Diego.

State Solon Shot While Hunting
Gridley.—State Senator A. L. Pierovich of Jackson was shot in his left thigh by an irate rancher while hunting pheasants near here. Together with his party, the senator had shot two pheasants when the rancher appeared running toward them, waving his rifle and ordering them to get off the property. It was stated the hunters had turned to retrace their steps when the rancher fired, striking Pierovich. The wound was not serious.

Schools Close for Pheasant Hunters
Willows.—So that clerks might participate in the opening day of pheasant season, local stores remained closed until 10 a. m. Schools did not open until 12:30 p. m. Among those who came for the opening day's shoot were Peter B. Kyne, author; Ty Cobb, Lefty Gomez and Tony Lazzeri of baseball fame, and Attorney General U. S. Webb. Local hotels were filled to capacity and it was estimated at least 500 cars were parked on nearby roads the night before the opening with hunters who were unable to get rooms.

Student Walks Mission Trail
Los Angeles.—Walking the actual path used by the padres more than a hundred years ago when they traveled from mission to mission is the task being undertaken by John Harrington, junior at the University of Southern California. Starting from the Los Angeles Plaza church, Harrington is spending six weeks tracing on foot the original El Camino Real, which has its northern terminus at Sonoma Mission. Equipped with camera, notebook, pedometer and other materials, the student is trying to discover forgotten traces of the old mission route, which he believes varies considerably from today's Pacific highway.

Huge Crystal Cavern Explored
San Francisco.—Discovery of a crystal cave with rooms of vast extent in a mountain sixty miles west of Boulder Dam, near Mexican Wells, Calif., was disclosed here by S. Maus Purple, archeologist. Purple said he was told by Indians of the cave in 1904, but it was not until recently that he entered it. "There is a huge lime mountain 6000 feet high," Purple declared. "Entrance to the cave is through gaseous blowholes above the 5000-foot level. There are rooms of vast extent. I went down 500 feet on a rope, with no sign of bottom at one point. It could easily be opened up to tourists by means of a tunnel. It would be to California what Carlsbad is to New Mexico," he said.

Comptroller Praises State Banks
Los Angeles.—The present condition of California banks reflects the recovery that has taken place in the State in the last four years. That is the opinion of J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, who added: "While 179 State banks and nine national banks have failed since deposit insurance became effective January 1, 1934, none of the national bank failures was in California, and only one small non-insured State bank was closed in this State."

JUMPER THE HARE CANNOT SLEEP

JUMPER THE HARE was growing thin. Yes, sir, he was growing thin. He never had been very fat, but now he was thinner than ever and getting more so every day. What was making him? Why, just worry. That is all—just worry. Here it was the beautiful springtime and plenty to eat, yet Jumper was growing thin. Very few people have a good appetite when they are worried. It was that way with Jumper. He just couldn't eat much, and what was almost as bad, he couldn't sleep much. Now eating and sleeping are what make people fat, and whoever cannot eat and cannot sleep is bound to grow thin. And so Jumper grew thinner and thinner, while almost everybody else grew fat.

It was all because of Reddy Fox. Reddy had made up his mind that he was going to catch Jumper the Hare and Jumper knew it. Now Jumper can outrun Reddy Fox, and when it comes to a race he isn't the least bit afraid. But Reddy is sly, very sly. He knew better than to try to catch Jumper by chasing him. He knew that he would have to catch him by surprising him when he was asleep, or by hiding close to some place where Jumper was in the habit of eating.

Jumper knew that, too. Of course he did. He knew just as well as Reddy did that Reddy couldn't catch him in a race. He felt perfectly safe as long as he could see Reddy or knew exactly where he was. But at all other times he was worried. You see, he didn't know but Reddy might jump out from behind any bush or tree, and so he had to be on watch every minute he was awake. That was bad enough, but what was worse was the fact that he didn't dare sleep. Of course, he had to sleep some; but it was in little naps from which the merest rustle of a leaf would wake him all ready to jump and run for his life. Now you know little naps like that give very little rest. And it is dreadful to close your eyes wondering if you will ever open them again. It was no wonder that Jumper grew thin.

It would not have been so bad if Reddy had been content to hunt him in the day time only. But he wasn't. You know Reddy can see in the night. And so he hunted by day or night, whenever he felt like it, and so of course poor Jumper never knew when he might safely sleep. He kept to the deepest part of the Green Forest, hoping that Reddy would not hunt for him there. You know Reddy is more fond of the edge of the Green Forest than he is of the deep, dark lonesome parts. But he had made up his mind to catch Jumper, and so now he followed Jumper to his most lonely hiding places.

It really was quite dreadful for Jumper, and yet it would have been worse for some others had they been in his place. You see, bad as it was, it wasn't quite as bad as things had been in the Great Woods, where Reddy had lived before coming down to the Green Forest. There he had had to watch out every minute for Tufty the Lynx and Howler the Wolf and Mr. Fisher and Mr. Wolverine, which was, of course, much worse than having just Reddy Fox to watch out for. So he had grown used to being al-

RED SNAPPER IS GREAT DELICACY

Expert Tells How to Cook and Serve This Fish.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"IS STEAK fish the same as red snapper?" asks a reader. "And how should it be cooked?" I have heard almost every fish which is large enough to be cut into steaks called by this name. Snapper is often known as redfish in the South, where it is considered a delicacy. Almost any method may be used for cooking it. I have recipes for boiling, baking, and broiling in my files.

In New Orleans the snapper is called, "the king of the fish market." Spices are usually used in its preparation. They are put into the water when the fish is "poached" or a cut, the shape of a letter S, is made on the back and then this is stuffed with thyme, cloves and bayleaf. The body of the fish may then be stuffed with a highly seasoned bread stuffing to which, in season, oysters are often added. It may then be rubbed thoroughly with butter or oil and baked in a hot oven, or it may be baked instead in a creole sauce. The sauce may be made separately and served with the fish.

Creole Sauce.

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 2 cups tomatoes
- ½ cup chopped mushrooms
- Thyme
- Bayleaf
- Cloves
- Cayenne pepper
- 1 clove garlic, minced

Heat the olive oil and brown the onion in it. Stir in the flour and let brown slightly. Stir in the other ingredients and let simmer half an hour.

Red Dressing.

- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ cup olive oil
- ½ cup catsup
- 1½ tablespoons salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 hard-cooked egg (chopped)
- 1 green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives or onion-tops

Mix the ingredients, add a small piece of ice and beat one minute until thick.

Baked Stuffed Fish.

- 1 three-pound fish
 - 3 cups soft bread crumbs
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - Pepper
 - 4 tablespoons melted butter
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 3 small tomatoes
 - 6 onion rings
 - Salt, pepper
- Split and clean fish. Mix crumbs and seasoning, add 2 tablespoons of melted butter and lemon juice. Mix well and stuff fish with mixture. Sew split edges together and place fish on oven-proof platter. Halve tomatoes, place around fish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and arrange an onion ring on each half. Pour remaining butter over fish and tomatoes. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about fifteen minutes until fish is tender. Remove from oven and garnish with sliced lemon and parsley.

OTHERS WORTH TRYING

Potato Dumplings.

- 6 medium boiled potatoes
 - 2 eggs
 - 1½ teaspoons salt
 - 1 cup flour
 - ½ teaspoon sugar
 - ½ teaspoon nutmeg
 - ½ teaspoon cinnamon
 - ¼ cup butter
- Mash potatoes, add eggs, salt, flour and seasonings and mix well. Knead lightly until smooth. Shape ways in danger. But since he had come to live in the Green Forest he had felt so much safer and life had been so much easier that now it came very hard to go back to the old way of living.

So Jumper the Hare lost his appetite and couldn't sleep and grew thinner and thinner in the beautiful springtime. And so it was that the fun that his friends and neighbors were having in teasing and making fun of Reddy Fox was really the cause of all the trouble that had come to Jumper the Hare, and he was too polite to tell them about it.

off; but when the air around the thermostat has dropped a little, usually by two degrees, the switch again works, and the heater starts up.

With a clock attachment, a thermostat does even more, for it starts the heater early enough in the morning for the house to be warm by getting-up time. Also, at any desired hour in the evening, it will shut off the heater for the night. As showing the watchfulness of a thermostat, I recall an unusually cool spell in summer when on the Fourth of July, we awoke in the morning to find the radiators hot and the chill of the rooms pleasantly taken off.

For many years, both with steam and with hot air, when all heaters were stoked by hand, I had great satisfaction with thermostats. The labor of caring for the fire was reduced to putting on coal and shoveling ashes; there was no running downstairs to turn on the dampers when the house became too cool, or to shut them off when it began to overheat. I found also that in checking a fire at just the right time, there was a distinct saving in fuel.

Later, I used thermostats in connection with a buckwheat stoker and an oil burner. With either of these, house heating is really automatic and it is even more so with gas as the fuel.

A important point in automatic heat is the placing of the thermostat. In one house that I know, there was trouble because the upstairs rooms were never quite warm enough. On looking the place over, I found that the thermostat was on the wall of a small room, so near the boiler that its radiators was the first to heat. As a result, the room warmed up to the temperature at which the thermostat acted, long before the upstairs radiators had had time to heat. This was quickly proved to be the fault by turning off the radiator in the thermostat room. The permanent remedy was to remove the thermostat to the wall of a larger room, where the temperature was more nearly average for the entire house.

THERE'S only one thing to do, when you're caught red-handed in the midst of forgetting a date. You simply have to do your best to hide the evidence.

If, for example, it was a dinner date, and the lad turns up just as you are about to pop a potato on the stove of your own little kitchenette, dump everything down the sink, and tell the boy friend that you were just fixing up some face lotion. . . . That you won't be a minute. And then, for land sakes, hurry with your dressing. If it's a steak you're cooking, that's harder. But maybe you can persuade him it was for a dog or a cat or a sick neighbor. Do try. We hate to see these crestfallen lads who lose their assurance because girls forget dates with them.

Some girls, we know, forget dates purposely. But this is a habit we frown upon. If that's the way they feel, they shouldn't make the dates in the first place. We believe in honor among the parasites.

"A rudder," explained the boy who knew his boats, "is a stern necessity."

You can sometimes put ruffianly men in their place by studied politeness.

Experience is profitable, but it frequently leaves scars.

People with short tempers have to go through life "being forgiven."

Fond mothers scarcely ever want their sons to be President. They want them to be what they are best able to be.

His Inspiration

We prefer, perhaps, our imaginary picture of our friend, rather than the real one. He, in his affection, tries to live up to it.

We have known of some footprints on the sands of time that one would like to erase.

We do not want any more things that are a trouble to look after—and a steam yacht is one of them. "Protecting" wild animals merely to slaughter them doesn't seem to be the ideal ideal.

It doesn't matter so much if a very young man loses his heart and his head at the same time. It is expected of him.

Real glory is to get your portrait on a postage stamp years after you are dead.

CHAPTER I

Two weeks of toilsome travel behind, two leagues of gently ruffled water before, the great canoe swung on to the end of its march, bearing a lamb to the slaughter.

That is what Donald Maciver was to say, when the leagues had been cut to canoe lengths.

But Rodney Shaw looked like no sheep, no innocent, as he sat there with one arm thrown easily over the mess basket. He looked like no beaten trader, either, though the number of packs was small, indeed. He had more the look and bearing of an emperor in his royal barge despite his youth and apparent poverty.

Though, of course, emperors have been young and poor . . . His eight boatmen sang so in lusty voices, as they sent the 40-foot North canoe along. Eight boatmen, gaily dressed as voyageurs should be for the rendezvous.

Roaring home, after a year inland, minds and hearts fixed ahead! Behind the canoe was the broad expanse of Lake Michigan's northern extremity; against its birch bottom pattered the indigo waters of the narrowing strait and that island, Mackinac, was the great depot of the fur trade, the chief gateway to the old Northwest and, in this year of 1818, the seat of a monopoly which was making aimless wanderers or mere employees of traders such as this Rodney Shaw.

Not all Mackinac slept late that June morning. The place was active. Few had slept late as had Donald Maciver, but then . . . he had wintered at Fond du Lac.

For Ramsay Crooks, however, there was no rest when others stirred. He was early at his desk, across which flowed a record of that bitter struggle, that bitter scramble for fur. Conrad Rich, an elderly clerk, toiled at another desk; men came and went, but toward none did Crooks so much as look.

He was preoccupied with what lay on his desk and what might come from the westward, yonder; so preoccupied that when the light which began outside with a yelp and a shout grew until a thousand men were close-pressed about the battle, Crooks gave little heed.

True, he looked closely before the affray was over, even moved to the window to stare; none with warm blood in his veins could have been wholly immune to such excitement. He watched them, under Maciver's direction, start up the hill with a heavy, limp burden.

Donald Maciver entered, removing his beaver hat, wiping his broad forehead.

Crooks nodded. "A brawl is required to wake the revelers," he observed, not ill-humoredly, but still with a tone of implied rebuke.

"Brawl! Ramsay, I don't 've missed you fer mooch! 'Twas th' boatman Roussel, tryin' his strength wi' my own Nadeau Nadeau, ye'll ken, carried th' black feather off wi' us last summer. What men! Nadeau, th' strongest fighter 'til now, 'nd Roussel, th' untried. Ye should 've seen them strain! I'd 'a' risked mooch on Nadeau Heart 'nd strength, th' mon has, but he could nae compare wi' Roussel. A horse, he is, a buffalo of a mon! He left my poor Nadeau in such condition I'd sky a copper for his chances. I had him lugged tae th' post surgeon like ye'd lug a package! Ye goes Roussel, hoo. Wi' th' black feather in his own cap!"

"Rodney Shaw will arrive today."

"Comin'! You're informed, then?"

"While you danced. He is come, Donald." — nodding impressively — "and the last challenge to our superiority in the northern department is removed!"

Crooks began to pace the floor slowly.

"Ay, he's been a burr, a thorn! Courageous, audacious, the last of the independent traders to yield. It will be heartening to report this achievement to Mr. Astor during his stay with us."

"Perhaps he has observed it close-in on him; one by one the unattached forts have given up since congress helped us drive the nor'-westers back into Canada. But this Shaw!" he shrugged. "A persistent mon! A trader to put shame on all but th' one of our company. Had it nae been for Rickman . . . But Burke Rickman, he's th' best mon we've had to drive out obstinate opposition!"

From outside came the sound of wheels and a gig, drawn by a pair of horses, drove past, a girl alone on the high seat.

"You goes one that makes a child of Rickman!"

"Indeed! Poor Rickman, in Annette's toils!" Crooks confronted Maciver.

"Mark you, Donald, 'tis not a bad asset, having one like she is, here. For two seasons, now, every unmarried trader young enough to hope for her smiles has struggled to make a record that he might be outstanding in her eyes."

"And for his pains, been made to suffer th' taunts of th' damned!" laughed Maciver and the clerk cleared his throat sharply.

"But there are duties, Donald," Crooks said, sorting papers from his desk. "The schooner will be laden by night. The captain will sail with the first fair wind. Mr. Astor and I will be gone and you will be in command and . . ."

A shrill whoop floated in from the beach. A shout. A rifle cracked. A strange canoe was out there, deep voices of the singing oarsmen sounding up the wind.

Rodney Shaw stared at the colorful spectacle before him. Lodge and tent and dwelling; craftsman's yard and shop and the high-perched, white-walled fort itself emptied to join the welcome.

Mackinac welcomed this arrival as it had welcomed many another. Oars were boated now and voyageurs, waist deep in water, shoved the canoe gently into the shallows, guarding its tender birch bottom from boulders.

Old Basile put down the steering oar with its carved blade, stepped over the side and bowed a long back for his trader. Shaw lowered himself to the firm shoulders and, his calves clasped by Basile's hands, was borne ashore, his well-rubbed boots thus kept dry.

The crowd pressed closely about, but one was making his way through it now impatiently, cursing hoarsely. This was Roussel, with the black feather, insignia of invincibility, thrust into the knot of the yellow kerchief which covered his shaggy head.

"Make way!" he shouted. "Make aside for the black feather! But what strange brigade is this?"

His great hands grasped shoulders, his stout elbows prodded ribs. Basile was directing the placing of packages, his eyes and attention all for that labor. He did not see Roussel, because his back was toward the man; if he heard the fellow's orders he gave no heed. So the hand on his arm spun him about roughly.

"Does one shout in your ear, old man?" Roussel demanded. "Did you not hear the voice of the black feather commanding you to stand aside?"

Basile struggled to release the arm. He put up his other hand in a gesture of protest, but for the inflamed eyes of the bully it was a move of resistance, a challenge to superiority. The hand was struck aside, a fist crashed into Basile's chest and he went down.

"Hold!" This was Shaw, striding forward. "Hold, you!"

But Roussel would not hold. He stopped, great hands clutching to seize upon and break Basile's body. Shaw rushed.

He grappled for Roussel adeptly. One foot set itself quickly behind the boatman's, his hands clamped the man's body at the gay sash and with a twist and a shove, the bully went reeling backward, roaring, against the press of the crowd.

He found his balance there and charged, head down. But a hand on his neck deflected him, a swooping foot tripped him. He stumbled and would have fallen but for the quick arms which seized him and lifted him and turned him over as he writhed and raised him high and let him drop his length on the single.

His heels were grasped by angry hands; his back scrubbed through loose gravel as he was jerked to the water's edge. One foot was drooped, a wrist caught up instead; he was swung once, twice, thrice in widening arcs. He was let go and fell with a cry and a splash into knee-deep water under the bow of the unloading canoe.

Then Rodney Shaw turned, the rage already dying in his gray eyes. He brushed his palms together briskly as though to free them from the dust of an empty honor.

Briskly, at first, and then the movements slowed until he stood there, hands half extended and motionless, staring up at her.

She sat on the high seat of her two-wheeled vehicle, looking at him across the heads of the murmuring crowd. Her horses pawed, but she held them with firm rein, body swaying a bit as their restlessness moved the gig. She smiled! Fire, in that smile, incitement and challenge and defiance, because Shaw had opened his mouth as if to speak, as though to let an amazed, incredulous ejaculation be jolted between his lips.

A voice, then, said to him: "I am Ramsay Crooks!"

Shaw came back to controlled faculties slowly, a bit bewildered, perhaps somewhat abashed. A man looked twice at Ramsay Crooks. Astor's liege man, dominant figure in the trade of the Northwest.

"I am Shaw," he replied simply. Crooks stopped. He picked from the gravel at his feet a black ostrich plume, the one knocked from Roussel's cap. He extended it with a gracious and graceful gesture.

"Yours!" he said and smiled. A stir behind Crooks distracted Shaw's steady gaze. The tandem team was moving away. The head of the driver turned ever so slightly and the pert chin lifted in tantalizing challenge.

Princess Te Puea, New Zealand Village Ruler, Is Worshipped by Her Subjects

Under the leadership and direction of the daughter of a Maori chief—a princess—a group of Waikatos has recovered by purchase from white owners the lands surrounding a spring sacred with religious significance and of sentimental value in the traditions of the tribe, writes a Waikato, New Zealand, correspondent in the Chicago Tribune.

A native village, Ngaruawahia, has been built on these lands, after models and plans a century old, with carvings and all the characteristics dear to the history loving Maoris, and here dwell Te Puea Herangi and several hundred of her people—oblivious to the changes brought about by aggressive invaders.

Though seventy-two years old and worn and wasted by tuberculosis, she had traces of former beauty and she was a grand and glorious woman. Even in a recumbent position, she had a regal look. Her complexion was light brown, her figure was small and thin, her fine gray hair was long and hung free and unconfined below her shoulders.

Large and expressive eyes alternately flashed fire and misted with tears as she discussed the conditions confronting her people, her voice was soft and her manners were gentle. Te Puea is a remarkable woman. She deserves to rank with the world's great. Her people worship her. She is not aggressive, shuns publicity, and devotes her life to the advancement of the Maoris. "She has adopted and reared more than a hundred orphans. She speaks, reads, and writes English. During the World war no inducements offered by the British could induce her to advise her people—the Waikatos—to enlist in the allies' army. It is said that if she had acquiesced to these persuasions and sent her people to fight for England, she today would be a grand dame of the British empire and in receipt of a comfortable pension. She steadfastly refused to accede to the requests of a government which, she says, has stolen the lands of her people."

Shaw took the black feather absently.

Night, with logs blazing on the hearth, because the strait winds are cold, even in June. They sat before the plastered fireplace in the high ceilinged room. Rodney Shaw, independent trader, and John Jacob Astor, who ruled a territory that was to be the heart of a nation. Ramsay Crooks was there, as well, but in the background.

A German baker's boy who had become the richest American through his handling of fur, was Astor; fur and tea and ships and land, but always fur.

There had been no talk of the errand which brought Shaw hither until after the meal, and then not until pipes had followed the gorging.

As Mr. Astor talked in his broken English, Ramsay Crooks listened closely and toyed with a rosette of gay ribbons.

"So," said Astor with a shrug. "Das ist vat Crooks asked you to come here. Ja!"

Shaw had scarcely moved since Astor began.

"And that is what I came to hear," he said quietly, and yet the words carried a ring of excitement. "That is what I expected to hear: your proposal, Mr. Astor, is that I surrender my independence. The offer to come and trade at your account and risk is scent to the bait."

Astor nodded casually but perhaps in his eyes was a glint of something not casual.

"I came to hear this: I came all this way, the length of Lake Michigan, sir," voice mounting and trembling ever so slightly—"to say to you, No! To say No a thousand times! I came all this way, sir, to say that you may rob me, badger me, persecute me, but I am not to be driven out. That, Mr. Astor, is what I came to say."

But now Astor's short, stocky body bent forward a bit and his harsh, strong mouth loosened somewhat as with incredulity.

"Was? . . . You coomt . . . you coomt"—lifting a plump hand—"just to say No to me?" His brows were gathered close, puzzled rather than angered.

"Ay! And ten thousand times, No!"

A slow flush had crept into Astor's face and he gripped his chair arms.

"You tink dot's smard? You tink dot's good sense? You tink when all iss amalgamation a young man shows sense to—"

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Silk Shades Give a Soft Glow

THERE is subtlety in the light that glows through a silk shade, and many decorators are using them for the room that needs the softness of plaited folds and the mellowness obtained by placing two tones of fabric one over the other.

Two tones of China silk, one to be used for a plain lining and the other for a gathered outside covering will make an attractive shade. Before you buy the material it is best to experiment with samples one over the other trying them both in daylight and over an artificial light. You will also need a roll of silk binding tape matching the top color of the shade. This tape is to wrap the wire frame. And fancy braid either in gold, silver or a harmonizing tone of silk is used to bind the top and bottom of the shade. Use cotton thread to match the outside tone of the silk.

Slip the binding tape off the roll and wrap a rubber band around it as shown here at A. Working from the inside end of the tape wrap the frame as shown at B. The outside layer of silk is put on next. This is gathered both top and bottom and pinned to the wire covering as at C and D so that it is stretched quite tight. Joinings in the outside covering need not be sewed but may be hidden under the folds. This material is sewed in place as at E.

Next, cut a straight strip for the lining and fit it around the outside of the frame as shown here at F. Trim the joining allowing a seam as shown at G. Sew to the frame at the bottom as at H. Trim quite close at the bottom. Turn lining to inside as at I. Slip, stitch the joining. Turn in raw edges at top and whip around top of frame. Pin the binding around and then sew it with stitches buried in the mesh of the braid.

Home Heating Hints by John Barclay

Heating Expert

Rubbish and Garbage Should Not Be Burned in Your Furnace; They Cause Trouble.

I SHOULD like to caution you against burning garbage and rubbish in the heating plant of your home. Many home-owners are given to this practice, knowing it is a quick and easy way to dispose of garbage, but not realizing fully that it is very harmful to the furnace.

Your furnace was built to burn coal, and coal only. Garbage and rubbish, when burned in it, deposit a thick crust of soot on the burning surfaces, and this soot absorbs much of the heat that should go into your rooms. They also form clinkers which, as you know, cause no end of trouble for you in keeping your fire burning efficiently.

Don't burn rubbish or garbage in furnace. They cause heavy soot to cake on surfaces and waste heat, and also cause clinkers to form. Keep the ashpit clean.

Remember this: A clean furnace, like a clean automobile engine, will give better service and greater comfort.

Rare Book

There are estimated to be only about 45 Gutenberg Bibles in the world and in 1884 one sold for $15,000. At that time, many of the books were privately owned. Today, with most of the Bibles permanently retired to museums and thus off the market, the price should be higher.

The Gutenberg Bible is valuable not for its scarcity alone. It is a curiosity because authorities aren't even sure Johann Gutenberg printed it. In fact, some experts claim the Fifteenth century German wasn't a printer at all!—Washington Post.

BIRTHDAY OF A GREAT PIONEER

In the hustle of Thanksgiving preparations it may have been forgotten that 224 years ago this week on November 24 California's first, and one of her greatest, pioneers was born—Junipero Serra.

Today we call a man able who can do one thing well. In Serra's time, when California's vast expanse was largely an unexplored wilderness peopled by savages, one had to do many things—and do them well! This Serra did.

Though frail of physique he tramped many hundreds of miles, educating, organizing, and building the first colonial outposts of the great territory that was to become the state of California. Those early settlements—a long chain of missions sweeping from San Diego to San Francisco—are now inseparably woven like a thread of gold in the story of California.

History sheds a glamorous light on the fiery, zealous figure of Serra, striding masterfully across mountains and valleys, instructing ignorant Indians, teaching them how to fashion adobe bricks and construct missions and presidios. We accept him for the successful pathfinder history rightly says he is.

But this week, in which his birthday falls, we can perhaps honor him best by remembering also that Serra's far-flung colonizing also brought him constantly against stiff-necked realities and incalculable hardships—little glamour in that job for him!

Yet in all his tasks he acquitted himself ably. California this week honors him for all the roles he fulfilled so well—as soldier, scholar, administrator, and first of her great pioneers!

THE FEELING IS IN THE AIR

There's no mistaking it—that certain spirit is in the air! Up in the high Sierra freshly packed snow is hugging the boulder-strewn slopes. And in the valleys and along the coastal plain, where Mr. Snowman is seldom seen, Old Sol is shining these days with a merrier twinkle—as he should.

It's all because the Christmas season is practically here. Any day now you can expect to hear it rap vigorously on the door and, without waiting for an answer, move right in with us, bringing its fragrant green wreaths, its gay-toyon berries and all the color and bustle that goes with the season.

Already the merchants have plentifully replenished and refurbished their stocks, forewarned that this may be one of the busiest seasons in years, and particularly so in California, where prices are lower than in many other parts of the country.

That is not due to Christmas magic, however. Judging from a recent bulletin on living costs—we'd call it a bulletin of California Christmas cheer—issued by the Department of Labor, California's lower prices are due to the common sense of shoppers, citizens, et al., who turned down a special tax against retail outlets.

QUEEN ORANGE STILL RULES!

California's orange is still mightier than the apple, speaking in terms of diets and vitamins. You can take the word of scientists of Idaho, Montana, Washington, Oregon and Utah. They've proved it so.

Dean Harrison, of Washington State College of Home Economics, reported the other day that a croup of Pacific Northwest dieticians have been studying the apple's innards, hoping to find it wealthier in vitamins than the orange. So far, no luck! The orange had a richer store of vitamins A and C, those sturdy body builders, than the apple. Queen Orange still holds her throne!

Failure To Signal Cause Of Accidents

Among the various causes of traffic accidents, one that stands high on the list is widespread neglect among motorists to give proper hand signals when planning to stop or make a turn.

Too many motorists, it is said, operate their cars as if other motorists were mind readers, with ability to foretell when the driver of the automobile ahead intends to stop or change the direction of travel.

While available figures indicate that failure to give signals or improper signaling are responsible for a great number of accidents, it is necessary only to observe daily driving habits to note the lack of signaling. The "I did" and "you didn't" argument with reference to hand signals is a familiar one on the highways and in the court rooms.

'Moving Mountain' Perils Los Angeles Valley Dwellers

New deep fissures appeared recently on the crest of a hill overlooking Elysian Park, a Los Angeles residential district, and, according to geologists, is widening at a rate of one-eighth of an inch an hour. A 500,000-ton segment of earth threatens to crash down a 400-foot escarpment on the edge of the district, imperiling many residents in the nearby vicinity. Authorities believe the "moving mountain" may have been started by water seepage from Elysian Park Reservoir. Photo shows officials examining the widening fissure, which began to open October 28.

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

By C. H. T.

Slides, continue on the new stretch of road, necessitating rush work of crews to clear the way. Meanwhile the steep slope of Grande avenue grows more deplorable with the heavy rains we have had. So far, no efforts have been made by authorities to improve the condition, and rumor whispers that Pedro terrace may lose some of its residents for the coming winter in consequence. The upper reaches of the mountain, gouged out last summer by "Tiny" Purser, "daring young man"—not "on his flying trapeze," but on the huge, ungainly caterpillar tractor that lurched its perilous way up the face of the cliff—have developed alarming shifts of clay and rock. And the big hill, that used to be so smooth and green, looks now as if it needs a face-lift!

The David Clark cabin was recently moved aside to make room for the construction of the Beaver garage. Whether the underpinning has been insufficient, or the rains too much for its timbers, observers tell us that it appears to be on its way down. We hope not. The Clarks were valued neighbors during the time of their stay at Pedro. We regret to miss them.

A surprise party that was really a big surprise, came along to that popular Rockaway man, "Jim" Troglia, on Saturday night. It seems that the guest of honor, not knowing what was in store for him, had retired, after a busy day at the winery. Hearing a deep sigh, he turned over for the first nap of the night. Then, suddenly, a section of the surprise party trooped in, dragged Jim from his slumbers and informed him he was going to get up and start over again, and that his friends and neighbors were waiting downstairs quaffing something that was being handed around on a large tray. So, then, since the party was on, sleep was tossed into the discard. The honor-guest dressed and came down to welcome his friends and have a good time. The party, we are told, was just another of Mrs. Jennie Bicknell's little jokes, and it turned out wonderfully well, with everybody having a jolly evening, plus a slice of the morning, as well! Dancing, music, "eats and drinks" entertained the guests at one of the merriest affairs of the season at Rockaway. Those present included: Mrs. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peterson, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Edgar Bailey, Capt. and Mrs. Dunigan, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Shawk, and many others, whose names will appear next week.

The Hector Martin's new room is nearing completion, a decided improvement to their residence. His work is so much in demand in this locality, that there is little time left free for carpentry in his own home after his day in San Francisco.

Dr. Eugene le Fèvre is so interested these days, in football, that he lets the world go by, while he listens in to radio reports, or goes to see the games. To a real, genuine football fan like the doctor, even his fine new motor boat fails to have its customary allure when a game is on schedule for the day.

The clustered name-signs that graced the foot of Grande avenue have violently disappeared. The splintered fragments lie in the ditch, and—true to Pedro tradition—nobody saw the hands that laid them low, nor knows why they were removed. It's just another local "mystery."

Meanwhile, what ever became of the street signs that were to be tacked to redwood posts so kindly contributed by the Johnson lumber company? We surely do need those good-looking signs, with all the visitors that come on Sundays wandering around trying to find where their friends reside.

June Scott is taking splendid snaps with her new camera. They say that nothing escapes her eye that would make a good picture.

The Dempsey lawn is spreading a bright green blanket all over the garden, and the recently planted trees and shrubs are doing well after the refreshing rains.

The youngest Miss Eskenberry is thriving in the healthful Rockaway air, these fine days, and the Eskenberry family think she is quite the nicest baby in the world. When she grows bigger, her mother will probably tell her what a wonderful "baby shower party" Mrs. Jennie Bicknell gave in her honor a few weeks before little Miss Eskenberry came on the scene.

Grace Danmann won a ten-pound turkey last week at a raffle. Her garden is going to provide ample vegetables for the family dinner-table. This combination looks as though the Danmanns had a sumptuous Thanksgiving feast.

Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" Hausmann, of San Francisco, have come down to live permanently in their pretty house on Grande avenue. They are a welcome addition to the Pedro neighborhood.

The Pedro Valley Improvement Club is planning another dance to be given December 11. Watch for the advertisements with all the details.

Mrs. Jim Stewart and Jim's fishing partner had a narrow escape from death Monday when out in a boat getting crabs. The motor died

Lesson Sermon Of Christian Science

"Do they not err that devise evil? But mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good." These words from Proverbs comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, November 28, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." (II Thess. 2: 7, 8).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Marvels, calamities, and sin will much more abound as truth urges upon mortals its resisted claims; but the awful daring of sin destroys sin, and foreshadows the triumph of truth" (p. 223).

Taught Them Most Needful Things

Warning Issued To Careless Drivers

Zealous of the safety of the children entrusted to her care a woman school bus driver in the Sacramento area has turned over to the Department of Motor Vehicles a list of twenty-one license numbers on automobiles which she charges failed to stop while her bus was loading and unloading passengers.

Warnings have been sent to the owners of the reported machines, calling their attention to the bus driver's allegations and citing the fact that it is mandatory on all cars to stop when overtaking a school bus loading or discharging passengers.

The director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, commending the woman bus driver said:

"Every motorist should appreciate the responsibility of protecting the occupants of the school buses and motorists who ignore their responsibility are subject to arrest by officers of the California Highway Patrol.

"In reporting violators, the school bus drivers are serving as a valuable adjunct to proper law enforcement."

U. S. Dancer Will Wed Egypt Prince

Norma Taylor

Norma Taylor, blonde dancer once named as "the other woman" in the Mary Astor diary case and whose name was linked romantically with that of Tommy Manville, playboy millionaire, will marry into the Egyptian royal family, it was recently reported. Miss Taylor will go to London, from where she has just returned, "sometime next month" to announce her engagement to an Egyptian prince, a cousin of the king of Egypt, the report said.

equipment. Competitive rifle matches are held at local rifle ranges.

The members, who are preferably radio amateurs or others in the industry, have the distinction of using special "Navy" radio call letters while operating their stations in this work, and enjoy other radio privileges, such as use of Naval operating procedure and distinctive frequencies.

Advancement in ratings and rank, of course, is commensurate with ability, but the nature of the training is such that many of our leading figures in communications today, have attained their present position in the industry as a result of their start earlier in life in this interesting field.

Attendance at meetings, air drills and summer cruises is entirely voluntary and should not interfere with the daily routine of the members.

An open meeting of the Naval Communication Reserve, will be held at the American Legion Hall, on San Mateo avenue, San Bruno, at 8 o'clock Friday night, November 19th. Interesting moving pictures will be shown. Navy and Naval Reserve officers of high rank, Civic leaders and American Legion speakers will be presented.

Teaches Third Generation

When Louis H. McDuffee of Rochester, N. H., attended high school in 1895 one of his teachers was Mrs. Anna Allen. When his son John went to high school in 1918 the same Mrs. Allen taught him. Now Mrs. Allen has a pupil Carolyn McDuffee, daughter of John and granddaughter of Louis.

Vocabularies Found Limited In Test

Executives of large American corporations ranked ahead of college professors in a vocabulary test conducted recently by the human engineering laboratory of Stevens Institute of Technology in a report of the research organization.

In fact, the business executives ranked ahead of any other group in so far as English vocabulary was concerned. The director of the research announced:

"Vocabulary is of the greatest importance in distinguishing executive rank among company employees we have studied. More than any single characteristic, it determines the executive position reached by a man or woman."

Shop foremen of the non-college graduate class score about as high in the vocabulary tests as the college and high school graduates, it was stated. It was also brought out that boys and girls in school should learn that their work is not artificial, and unrelated to the outside world, but that a student who launches forth with a rich vocabulary at his command will likely find himself a successful worker in the field of life.

GAS KILLS FIVE

Gas escaping from a jet in a kitchen range killed a family of five at Bridgeport, Conn., this week.

The victims were Raymond C. Yeoman, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; his wife, Elizabeth, and their two girls and a boy.

Ernest Perrin, internationally known linguist, poet and lecturer, died in Brookline, Mass., this week. He was 86 years of age.

Automobile Driving Taught In School

A traffic safety and automobile driving class is being conducted at the Herbert Hoover Junior High School in San Jose under direction of L. T. Clohan. Two classes composed of 60 boys and girls are being taught fundamentals of driving, and will study the California vehicle code.

Some study of automobiles will be taken up, including energy of a car in motion, stopping distance, reaction time and its significance, and principles of the internal combustion engine.

A garage and work room are under construction on the school grounds to house the chassis of a car so Mr. Clohan may describe the mechanics of an automobile. A complete car will be purchased later to instruct students in driving.

The school is said to be the first school of its type in California to inaugurate a driving class. Training children in principles of traffic safety and careful driving will reduce traffic mishaps in the future, it is pointed out.

$150,000 Fire Hits Town In Alaska

Fire, Monday of this week, destroyed a large portion of the Petersburg, Alaska, waterfront, with a loss estimated at $150,000.

The blaze started in a cold storage plant, burning a dock, a shrimp cannery, two warehouses, 50,000 pounds of salted fish and several fishing boats. Halibut gear valued at $30,000 was also destroyed.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

For Dry Shoe Polish.—Shoe polish which has become hard and dry should be moistened with a little vinegar.

When Washing Blankets: Never leave any soap in blankets as this will turn them yellow. Allow half a cupful of vinegar to each gallon of final rinsing water; this will clear all soap from them.

Improving Flavor of Bacon.—When boiling bacon or any kind of salted meat, the flavor will be improved if six cloves, a dessert-spoonful of lemon juice, a table-spoonful of brown sugar, a sprig of mint, and a grating of nutmeg are added to the water.

Ten-Minute Sweet.—Line a buttered pie dish with breadcrumbs. Into a pint of milk whisk 2 eggs, 4 table-spoonfuls of sugar and a dash of vanilla essence. Pour over the crumbs and bake for 10 minutes.

Savory Salmon Dish.—Turn out a small tin of salmon, remove skin and bones and flake the fish. Season with pepper and salt. Mix 2 cupfuls of breadcrumbs with 2 ounces of flour, stir in 2 well-beaten eggs and the salmon. Mix well, then form into the shape of a fresh salmon steak. Fry in a little hot fat until brown, turning carefully so that both sides are cooked. Serve garnished with sliced lemon or tomatoes.

In Making Vegetable Salads.—To prevent vegetable salads from becoming too watery, dry the vegetables before combining with the salad dressing.

Wipe Up Acid Foods.—Since some enamels lose their luster when they come in contact with acid, always be careful to wipe up, immediately, any vinegar, lemon juice, tomato, or other acid food that is spilled on the enamel of your range.

When Sales Drop

Between 1929 and 1933 the expenditure for advertising in newspapers and periodicals dropped 50 per cent, but the value of manufactured products showed a much greater reduction percentage.

Advertising Reduced Cost

A third of a century ago the price of the cheapest automobile was about $5,000. Today a much better car can be bought for around $700. Advertising created demand, demand created mass production, with many times the number of jobs, and mass production improved the quality and reduced the price.

You can pay as high as you want for remedies claimed to relieve the pain of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, etc. But the medicine so many doctors generally approve—the one used by thousands of families daily—is Bayer Aspirin—15¢ a dozen tablets—about 1¢ apiece.

Simply take 2 Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions.

Usually this will ease such pain in a remarkably short time.

Public Paying Off on Accomplishments in Gridiron World

YEARS ago when Democrats and Republicans were still doing business as such, life was considerably easier for a sports writer. Everything had a tag on it, was classified with seemingly as much permanence as the two major political parties.

There were only two big leagues, the American and the National. No one had thought at that time to identify the Yankees as a separate organization any more than they had yet conjured up such cute labels as curve-ball league, fast-ball league, hitters' league and pitchers' league.

Situation Is Changed by Irish and Pitt

Only football had anticipated the modern trend. There was, for instance, the matter of properly ascribing the coaches. Once that had been easy. You merely put them into two groups, "lucky fellows with jobs in the Ivy league" and "sad agents hoping there would come a day when they would have a pay roll big enough for them to compete with the Ivy league in the higher educational field."

Then the classification changed. Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, two institutions which for years had been doing well enough in preparing young men for the travails of teaching and bond selling, enlarged their scope.

Forthwith the spotlight centered on the two men of undoubted genius who had been responsible for this pickup. With the generosity that is proverbial among newspaper men, the press credited each of them with having a system. Other coaches copied their strategy. Soon it became the habit to refer even to such long-established practitioners as Gil Dobie or Hurrup Yost as followers of the "Warner system" or the "Rockne system."

Obviously there was some error here and there in such groupings, but the general rating was pretty well accepted. One day I asked Rockne if he believed there was any sense in such regimentation.

"No," he replied. "There's only one way to classify coaches or teams either, for that matter. Winners or losers. That's what it all boils down to."

Midway in another football season and knee-deep in gentlemen who are claiming all sorts of new classifications as the result of municipal and state elections throughout the nation, I have been thinking about that reply.

Both Sides End Up by Blaming Teams

I am not entirely satisfied with "Pollyannas" and the "Pity Poor Us" groupings. Actually there is very little difference between the Pollyannas claiming the nicest things are going to happen in this best of all possible worlds and the Pity Poor Us-es whining in advance.

Both sets usually wind up by blaming it all on the team Saturday night. Meanwhile, since opposing coaches and the operators of football pools are cynical men, they have fooled nobody save people who play football pools.

It also returns us to where we started. Perhaps because, like other voices of the people, alumni usually do their darndest in November, I could try the rating once suggested by the lamented sports commentator, Bill McGeehan. This was, "Coaches sure of their jobs and coaches who never say a word even when the music prof flunks the only running halfback left with two legs."

Yet, what good does that do us? Almost immediately we discover that some of the men sure of their jobs are so new to success that they have not yet had real opportunity to make a failure of it. Conversely, some of the boys who have lost everything save the franchise, took their nose dive because they were too smug while at the top.

That brings us back to the Rockne rating—"Winners and losers." True, men who compose the groups often interchange so quickly that it is difficult to tell who is coming and who is going. Yet, with all other things equal there are men who will tumble and men who will go on for touchdowns. The essential difference is there in all sports. Sometimes form holds for a day, sometimes for a season. Anyhow, the public pays off.

And, come to think of it, aren't sports very much like that greater game of politics?

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE!

ALTHOUGH he started his newspaper career as a sports writer, Henry L. Mencken, the eminent author and critic, now confesses he has seen only one sports event in six years. He says that was a combat between two lady wrestlers and, although he was highly entertained when one of them bit the other in the leg, he departed feeling sorry they had not killed each other.

The twenty-year-old Man o' War now weighs 1,375 pounds, 300 more than he scaled during his racing prime.

Add winter occupations of ball players... Mule Haas operates a tavern in Jersey. Ethan Allen continues to write a book about baseball. Adolfo Luque is raising game chickens in Cuba. Buck Newsum is about to buy a pool parlor down in Carolina. Joe Casarella is warbling love sonnets over the air waves.

Carl Hubbell's hurry to get back to Oklahoma after the World Series was not because he was greatly concerned about his pecan groves. Although he has been playing the game only two winters the celebrated southpaw has become one of the nation's most ardent golfers. Says his wife tells him he's crazy but he just can't help getting out on the course rain or shine.

Only five of the sixteen hockey Rangers—Davey Kerr, Babe Pratt, Cecil Dillon, Butch Keeling and Frank Boucher—are married. Hughie Goose Gustafson, defense man with the Rangers' Philadelphia Ramblers farm team, was voted the most valuable player in the Northern (Class D baseball) league last summer. He played first base for the Winnipeg Maroons and can also play a hot game of basketball.

Joe McCarthy of the Yankees says a baseball manager does most of his worrying in the winter, usually about things which never happen.

Coach Chet Wynne, who played with George Gipp at Notre Dame, claims he does not get the material at Kentucky that he did at Auburn. Also feels that the climate, which is often more of the Mid-West than Dixie variety, works against him.

Tells Why It's So Hard to Pick Golf Winners

Notes on why it's almost as difficult to pick golf winners as it is to get football selections right... Ky Laffoon was 30 pounds overweight last summer. Jimmy Demaret has the smoothest swing in golf but lacks the winning urge. Harry Cooper is sucker money for the bookies because he lets his nervous temperament lick him. Horton Smith just can't get the touch of Eastern courses. Vic Ghezzi is too easily diverted by outside allurements. Jurg McSpaden is lost on Florida courses.

Tony Galento, who never uses sparring partners, always bills Manager Joe Jacobs for them anyhow after a fight... His friends insist that one of the first things Middleweight Harry Balsamo did when he started fighting star bouts was to buy a washing machine... Cliff Wilson, Harvard's very good line-man, wanted to go to Navy but missed on the appointment because of some dental trouble... Dave Abrington, Ohio State's Olympic high jumper who will double as a hurdler next spring, is conducting an orchestra this winter... Carl Brumbaugh, new Dodger backfield ace and former assistant to Coach Bezdak of the Cleveland Rams, scored three touchdowns in six minutes against Alabama in 1928.

Henry Armstrong, the featherweight champion, plays the violin and piano and sings in the choir. He likes to bowl, and once was a pin boy. Doctors claim his heart action is slower than normal, and he shadow-boxes six rounds in the dressing room before entering the ring for a fight. Sports writers probably have coined more nicknames for him than for any batter of modern times. He has been nicknamed "Homicide Henry," "Hustling Hank," the "California Comet," "Black Blizzard," "Cyclone," "Buzz Saw," "Windmill," "Spider," "Terry McGovern." Aside from being a little gentleman, he is the greatest fighter in the ring today.

Harry Gilmore of Chicago was the first featherweight champion, largely because he claimed the title when the class was established and recognized in 1887. How many old-timers remember that Dal Hawkins, usually recalled as a lightweight, succeeded him on the throne? The feather class limit in those days was 118 pounds. After beating Abe Attell in five rounds Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan held the title for nearly four years. Then in 1908 he lost it back to Attell, who kayoed him in four rounds... Louis Kid Kaplan, now a Connecticut insurance man, performed an almost unprecedented feat after winning the title via the elimination tournament. He refused $35,000 for a fight, saying he could not make the weight and would not take money under false pretenses... Johnny Kilbane held the title the longest, 11 years. Eugene Caulgi, who succeeded him, was champion for only one month.

Noble Kizer, who will spend the winter at Albuquerque, N. M., expects to return to Purdue in time to conduct spring football practice.

A Little Bit Humorous

SOLVING THE MYSTERY
A Manchester commercial traveler met another "knight of the road" in the dining car.
"Of course, you're from Lancashire?" said the latter.
The Manchester man replied that he was, and asked why the question had been asked.
"Oh, I was just accounting for your accent," was the reply.
Then the Manchester man said: "And where do you come from?"
"Worcester," replied the other, innocently.
"Ah, well," remarked the other, "now I can account for your sauce."

Smith, a chronic borrower, had exhausted all his friends, and one day tackled a mere acquaintance, Brown, outside the latter's home.
"Excuse me," began Smith diffidently, "but I've come away without any money. Can you lend me $10?"
"I'm sorry, but I haven't a cent with me," said Brown.
"And at home—" queried Smith hopefully.
"All very well, thanks," murmured Brown.

Repentance
Two women were waiting for a bus. As one came up, the conductor cried:
"Room for one on top and one inside."
"But surely you wouldn't separate a mother and a daughter?" protested the elder of the women.
"I did once," replied the conductor bitterly, as he rang the bell, "but never again!"

To Put It Bluntly
A Vermont pastor of the old school met one of his parishioners on Monday morning.
"I haven't seen you in church for some time," said the preacher.
"No, parson, I've lost my religion."
"I hope no one finds it," was the comment as the parson went his way.

beat War Admiral," Howard was asked.

"Well, we tried for three months to get a match race, either for $25,000 or just a silver cup," he replied significantly.

"Seabiscuit missed a work before the Maryland race War Admiral won, or we would have run him then. The track conditions had kept him in the barn and upset his training schedule, and we wanted our horse right at his best when he was to meet War Admiral."

Howard put at rest Eastern dispatches saying that Seabiscuit would be retired to the stud in Kentucky.

"We don't plan to retire him yet, but when we do, it will be in California."

"Seabiscuit's arrival overshadowed the unloading of the other horses, that Fair Knightess, the best 4-year-old mare in America; Chaceview, the country's top mudder and Adversator a handicap star slipped in almost unobserved."

Other horses in the Howard shipment included Dressage, a fast 2-year-old filly purchased from C. V. Writer Reviews Rules On Restoration Of Lost Or Stolen Bonds Issued By Federal Government

(By Hart Goodrich)

Leave your Liberty loans and other government bonds at home when you fare forth to milk the cows! If one investor had done this he would have saved the surrenders section of the Division of Loans and Currency of the United States Treasury a great deal of time and effort—but that is their business.

A farmer in the Northwest was feeding his calves and his wallet was stuffed into his back pocket. In that pocket book he carried certain bonds. As he moved about his labors the wallet fell, unseen, into the calves feed trough. On discovery of his loss, a short time later, he found one calf serenely chewing a strange, tough cud. The agitated farmer retrieved as much of the mess as he could persuade the animal to give up, packed it carefully in cotton wool and sent it on to the claims section of the Division of Loans and Currency. Analysis proved the farmer really had lost his bonds in this way and others were issued to him.

Cases that have been established by such analysis are pretty nearly miraculous, in the eyes of the layman.

Suppose the old homestead burned down. All you have to do is collect the bonds that are tucked back of the third brick in the chimney, put them in a little box, wrapped in cotton wool, and ship them to Washington. Sometimes the packages received contain the most minute fragments, sometimes strange and messy lumps, sometimes only ashes; but by the wizardry of science they can be identified as your bonds.

So many painful experiences could have been avoided had Mr. and Mrs. American Citizen known more about the rules governing bonds. In the first place, experts tell us we should become more familiar with our bonds if we wish to guard against the loss of them. And remember that a coupon bond title passes by delivery

BRISBANE GENERALITIES

By Mary Lou Burns

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Watson left, Wednesday of this week, for a visit to Mrs. Watson's relatives in Colorado, to remain over the holidays.

Webb Smith is building a new garage at his home.

Bos Burns has been ill for several days, but is now able to be up and around again.

(or theft) just as does the title to a twenty dollar bill with which you pay the furniture installments.

We are told that we should register our bonds. It doesn't cost anything beyond a 3-cent stamp, and it's an entirely painless process. Send your bond to the Division of Loans and Currency, accompanied by a letter of instructions. If it is a coupon bond, be sure to register the letter (or package, if you have that many) and have it insured before mailing. And, another thing—don't be afraid to give up your bond!

Certain bright individuals have, from time to time, conceived the idea of sending in photographs instead, assuring Uncle Sam they were keeping the originals just to be sure. Not one of these careful owners probably knew that he had committed a crime in thus photographing an "obligation or other security" for which he could be put behind the bars for a little 15 year term and cost him $5000.00 to boot.

Remember not to ask the government to register a minor as the owner of a bond. The name of the guardian should be supplied instead. And when a husband and wife own a bond jointly, they should be registered "John Smith and Mary Smith," not "John and Mary Smith." And John needn't think he can get away with assigning the family bond without Mary's knowledge. "All persons named," says the government, "must unite in assignment if living." If you expect to put anything over on the wife, buy savings bonds instead of Treasury bonds—they recognize either party. Know your bonds! This may save you time and money at some future date.

The November monthly meeting of the Brisbane P. T. A. was held Thursday, November 18, in the school auditorium. The meeting, devoted to school demonstration, was turned over to Miss Lipman, who spoke on modern teaching methods in the primary grades. Mrs. Holbrook and her third and fourth grades presented an original Indian and Pilgrim skit. Music was furnished by the Primary rhythm band directed by Miss White. Art work from the fifth and sixth grades was exhibited by their teacher, Miss Enderlin. The upper grades who are studying California history, closed the demonstration with songs of California. The work of the teachers who prepared the instructive meeting is greatly appreciated. The banner for parent representation at this meeting was awarded to Mrs. Holbrook's class. The attendance of many new mothers was noticed and they are invited to continue this interest at the next meeting on December 16.

The Brisbane unit was represented at the meeting of Seventeenth District at the Burlingame High School Friday, November 19, by the president, Mrs. G. McKinney, and delegate Mrs. B. Darling. Among the important issues was a report of the State Board meeting by District President Mrs. E. L. Miller. The Drama Club of Burlingame High School gave a variety program after the business meeting. A resume of the varied discussions will be given at the next meeting of the Brisbane P. T. A., December 16.

Compliments were lavish at the social hall last Sunday for the delicious ham dinner served by the P. T. A. The unit is justly proud of the dinner committee who gave so generously of their time and energy.

The success of the Children's Christmas Party was assured by the patronage of those friends who attended the dinner.

The Brisbane P. T. A. invites all who enjoy whist to attend the party at the school Tuesday, November 30, at 8 p. m. Score cards are fifty cents. Home made cake and coffee will be served. The proceeds will be used for the Children's Christmas Party.

ing clerk, turns in another excellent performance. His is a difficult role in that without extreme and constant caution the part could be made sloppily sentimental and thus ruined. Others who scored were Rupert Drum and Maurice Hugo as the lawyer employers; Will Vedder, a dear old fussy, voluble, good hearted law clerk; Daniel Pennell as the judge; Crawford Perks as the defending barrister; J. Raymond Northcutt as the prison governor and Alice Hult as the woman for whom the embezzling clerk sacrificed everything. "Justice" should prove one of the government players greatest hits. It is scheduled for a run of two weeks only.

crash victims, others have greatly alleviated suffering of injured persons. A good start has been made, but more stations and more workers are required.

New Method For Carrying Clothing

In making a recent motor trip, we found that our best clothing (dress suits, dresses, etc.) were safely brought to our destination without wrinkling, by keeping them on coat and trouser hangers, inserting them in large paper bags (such as are received from cleaners), and hanging them on rubber suction cups stuck on the bottom of rear windows of the car, leaving the lower parts draped over suitcases on the rear seats. Using this method, we found it unnecessary to have any of this clothing pressed after unpacking.—E. C. B., Milwaukee.
